

The Cooperative CSA

WHAT IS A CSA?

CSA stands for Community Supported Agriculture, which is a direct farm-to-consumer program that provides you with the freshest local, seasonal vegetables each week. It's a great way to try and eat more veggies, eat more local food and eat seasonally since you will simply get whatever is in abundance at harvest time.

WHAT DO YOU GET?

A box of farm-fresh, mostly organic produce every Tuesday beginning May 25th, 2021. The 6-8 items in the weekly box (which will feed a 2-3 person family) will change as the seasons change, depending upon availability.

WHO ARE THE FARMERS?

Rolling Fork Organic Farm is a certified organic farm in the hills of Central Kentucky near Danville that focuses on sustainability and conservation practices, including regenerative farming and vermicomposting. Casey County Organics, a cooperative of organic farmers near Liberty, KY, will also be contributing to the share boxes. Smaller farms will be adding to the shares throughout the season—like lettuces from Salad Days Farm in Versailles and microgreens from Everae Gardens in Lexington—so they benefit from the cooperative nature of this CSA too.

WHAT DOES IT COST?

The whole season—20 weeks of fresh, organic produce—costs $560, which breaks down to $28 per week. Early Bird subscribers who sign up before April 1 will get last season's pricing of $550 per share.

HOW DO I GET MY PRODUCE?

Sign-up for a full season (late May–mid-October) before May 1st. Each week a bag of fresh, organic produce will be delivered to Good Foods Co-op, 455 Southland Drive, Lexington. Please return your insulated bag from the previous week each time you pick up your new share bag. We work hard to minimize food waste, so please be aware that shares not picked up within 24 hours will be donated to folks struggling with food scarcity.
